Severe restrictions on movement in the coastal area were enforced in the summer of 1952, especially in the area between Kolobrzeg and Leba which was declared out of bounds to civilians. The woods along the coast were also out of bounds. After 9:00 p.m., no one was permitted on the roads or the beaches which were in bounds, otherwise they would be shot on sight. The WOP (Military Border Guard) uses a large number of well-trained dogs on patrol.
